Flake

Designed by Henrik Drecker

Flake is a contemporary pendant defined by a slim, floating cylinder and refined light diffusion. An integrated acrylic disc softly distributes the light, creating a glare-free and balanced illumination. Combining clean geometry with atmospheric light, Flake unites function and aesthetics in a minimalist expression.

About the Designer

Henrik Drecker is a German designer working across product design, scenography and exhibition design. His work is driven by a strong narrative approach, where objects and spaces are given their own identity, story and character.

He aims to create designs that go beyond function, evoking associations and engaging the viewer through a refined and restrained aesthetic. Simplicity and atmosphere are key elements in his practice.
